It's a bond like none other

My grandparents are my greatest companions and always shower me with special treats and loads of love. I’m fortunate that they live in the same city and I can visit them whenever I want.

It was an early Sunday morning when my father dropped me at my grandparent’s place to spend the entire day. On seeing me, the expression on their face radiated the happiness of two dear friends meeting each other. My grandfather gave me the warmest hug ever. Soon, I was served some lip smacking snacks prepared especially for me. Later, I played some indoor games with them. It seemed my grandparents had exclusively kept aside the day for me.

The time spent with my grandparents is always unique, special and seems to whizz past in a jiffy. At lunch time, I realised that the food served comprised of all my favourite dishes. In fact, no matter how much I ate, my grandmother would always believe I was still hungry! She shared with me that special moment of ecstasy, when she held me in her arms for the first time when I was born. With the onset of evening, the time to go back home drew closer. My father came to pick me up and on the drive back home drew closer. My father came to pick me up and on the drive back home, my discussion with my father was about the next test, the marks I secured and the assignment that I had to finish. I wondered why he did not discuss my latest experiences with me – I know he scolded his own son, why did my grandmother never seem impatient and angry with me for the interminable stories that I demanded. Her answer unveiled the entire enigma of this relationship. She said, this bond that skips a generation is very exclusive and special – it knows no anger, no moods and is unconditional. Today, when I see my basic work of art displayed in my grandparents room instead of the finest paintings, I ask no questions. Undoubtedly, it is an awe-inspiring relationship that links the vital past with the vast future, a ‘grand relationship’ to which the entire world gives a standing ovation. Indeed, it is truly befitting to address these righteous, inspiring and loving individuals as ‘GRAND PARENTS’.

Preparation

Grind biscuits, sugar and cocoa powder in a mixer to a fine powder, stirring it constantly to form a smooth creamy batter, without any lumps.

Empty complete END from sachet and beat the mixture for another 1 minute.

Method

Grease a microwave safe baking dish with butter and pour the entire batter in it. Place the dish in oven and set it in cook-heat mode for 10 minutes.

Check by piercing a knife in the center of the cake till the bottom and ensure it comes out clean.

Sprinkle choco chips for garnishing.

In my family, I can see, five loving people and me. We together are a lot of fun, my little sister is my true friend, and sharing they teach me understanding.
